

What You Give Out To The Universe Comes Back To You!

Every since I can remember I have believed this powerful statement to be true with all my heart and soul. So as a result of this I have always thought and acted very carefully when with others and myself. Always trying to come from a place of love and thought to myself carefully before I act or speak as much as I can. I would think to myself how would I want things to happen if I was in this position. If this situation was happening to me what would I want to happen for me. When you act and think in this way it makes it very easy for you to do of your best for you and for others that are around you. To always come from a place of love and kindness and to think of other people and not just yourself. To not just react to someone or event even though sometimes you may want to and sometimes you do. But at least try to do your best and not to react to others or to the world as much as you can. Over time you get better and better at doing this till you don't react at all and just accept what is with out some bad reaction and remain positive and think of the best and can see new opportunities that are there for you.

It does not matter what any one else does because the universe will deal with them as a separate issue. It is not your job or responsibility to deal with them at all. What you need to think about and worry about is how you act and behave and to do your best at all times for you and your own life. These are some great little tips for helping you to have your best life that you can. To be a good person with good morals and values to live by so your own life is the best that it can be. Science has now proved that this statement is true and is what really does happen in life. That what you give out does come back to you that every thing is energy. Because how this works is now proved to be a law of the universe. It may not happen at the time that you want it to or straight away but it does happen for you at the time that the universe feels is the right time for it to happen. Everything takes place in the right time, place and event as it should. So you never need to worry or fret as that does no one any good at all just relax and go with the flow of the universe. Be open to good things coming to you because they will when you allow them to your own life. Soon you will see that everything happens magically for your life and for others in the best possible way better that you expected. Every thing that happens for you is a learning opportunity for you to grow from to do better with. It is all experience and something for you to take the information that you get and to use in your life for you or others to do better than before to learn and to grow with.

When I see people who do a sloppy job of something and trying to get away with something and getting off easily. I feel sad for them that they want to act that way because what will come back to them will not be nice and a good experience as if they had been more ethical and honest in their actions. But that is a lesson that they need to learn by themselves. Some people learn the hard and long way and you need to stay out of their way and not get involved in this. Let them lead there own life with there own experience. It needs to be there own understanding and not you pushing it onto them for them to make these decisions in their life and not your decision at all. They need to do what they feel is the right thing for them to do and that has nothing to do with you and your life. They need to use their own values to live by.

I usually try and give away or do more than what I take and do extra of a job or more than would have been expected of me. That way you know that you will get good karma coming back to you at some time later in your life and you can never go wrong with this. This natural law of the universe has always worked for me it has never let me down once. Usually the result is even better than I would have expected for me. It is like charity the more that you give to others the more that you get back from the universe as a result. You always will get back ten fold what you give out to the universe. So you do not need to measure or worry about getting what you want because when you give with an open heart and mind you will always get back and more and better than what you gave out to the world. So just give with an open heart and loving words knowing that good will come back to you in some special unknown way. You never know when it will happen or how it will happen but that is part of the magic to let go, believe and trust that the universe has the best in mind for you in your own life.